Barb ne enme t oply to Cal F rl, he dissected the you leman's speech most thoroughly, in an dile and masterly matther. He si west ully met each argament attempted by Mr turtor Douglas. Col Bartiour showed a nebusively, by in-disputable facts, that Senator Douglas was the regularly nominated cardidate of the Democratic party, according to its past usages, customs and regulations; that Major Breckinridge was not, but was run using in exposition to the will of his own party, and against the principles of his party; that he was only nominated by a mass meeting, at Baltimore, and by a Disunion convention, at Richard Col. Barbon went into a history of the slavery question agateile, is an absurdity—a species of able reception. The Democrats of the und showed that Douglas' doctrine of popu har sovereignty was right, upon reason and principle; that non intervention by Congress with slavery in the Territo self government by the people of the Terri-torics, in subordination to the Constitution of the United S.n. s, was the great princi Sebraska till of 1854; that this was the true corrine of the Constitution, and of the Hereocratic party; that Senator Douglas had done more to build up the Democratic party than any man now living; had done more against the Abelition party of the North than all of the horde of Dis unit in Fire-caters of the South combined; and done more for the South, both in and out of Congress, than all of the Jeff Davises, Yaneeys, Rhetts, and Lawrence M. Keitts, and their ountiderates in the Disnator cause, could do in a century. And yet, strange to say, these men and their followers charged that Honglas was not sound ipon the slavery question.

I cannot, in the shape of a letter, of ol Barbour's argument anything like jus-ce. Suffice it to say that his speech was asterly, able, and statesmanlike. Col. B. met all of the allegations and charges of Col. F. most triumphantly. For instance: Col. F. asserted that J. C. Calboun Lad always opposed the Misseuri Compromise and the extension of the principle of the Missouri line to the Pacific; that Itouglas had on the side of the abolitionists, &c.

Col. B., in his reply, read from the book of young Mr. Ford, that the South had yoted unanimously with Dauglas in the Senate, in 1848, in favor of the exension of the Missouri line, and especially had John C. Calhoun, of South Carolina, so voted. It all of the Breckinridge speakers could be as successfully answered as was Mr. Ford by New York, is estimated at $1,000,000 a cear.
